Dear Sir

Re: ADDITIONAL EXPLORATION TARGETS DELINEATED AT CROYDON

Gold Aura Limited announces that as a result of a recent review of all existing geological, structural, geochemical and geophysical data by an independent geological consultant, a further 13 exploration targets have been identified in the Croydon Project area located in North Queensland. This expands the number of high priority targets in the Croydon Project area to 19. Gold Aura considers that the Croydon Goldfield remains under-explored and field work to evaluate these new and existing targets will commence shortly.

Gold Aura considers that if favourable structural development can be identified in any of these targets, the chances of discovering a significant gold deposit is considered to be excellent based on previous exploration work that has shown that gold mineralisation extends to considerable depth.

Estimated total past production from the Croydon Goldfield is just under one million ounces of gold and one million ounces of silver, ranking it amongst the most significant goldfields in Australia. The gold has been won from more than 300 separate structurally controlled small quartz reef occurrences, grouped in districts and spread over 250 sq km. Encouragement has been generated from the fact that while one or more significant sized gold deposits might be expected in this situation, none have been located to date.

*The mineral resources information in this Report is based on, and accurately reflects, information compiled by Mr Rob Murdoch who is a Corporate Member of the Australasian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.
